
Why get involved

Certificate of completing the volunteer activities

After completing the specified number of volunteering hours, you will receive a certificate confirmed by Charles University and the selected partner organization. The certificate is proof of your volunteering activity and can be attached to your CV.

Personal development and CV

By being involved in volunteer activities, you strengthen your social and communication competencies and acquire other important knowledge and skills. Hence, your CV is the ideal place to present these experiences.

By mentioning your volunteering activities, you demonstrate to employers that you are actively involved beyond the scope of your studies or current job. It is also assumed that you have a greater tendency to work independently and to take initiatives and that you have practical experience. Ideally, you can mention in your CV or directly at an interview how your volunteering can contribute to the job you are applying for. Even a seemingly unrelated volunteer experience can be an asset to your future employment.
